

Under Secretary of State of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Dear readers and students,

I would like to send my warmest greetings to those who will have the opportunity to read the Eduitalia guide - study in Italy. You have already expressed an interest in knowing more about Italy, something I strongly encourage you to do.

The promotion of the Italian culture and language abroad have always been among the primary goals of the Italian Ministry for Foreign Affairs, through its diplomatic network and in coordination with many associations and public bodies.

Encouraging the knowledge of the Italian culture abroad is an important step to building mutual understanding and a lasting collaboration. The Italian Ministry for Affairs supports the important activities carried out by Eduitalia, which has a critical role in supporting and making many foreign students' dream come true. That dream is to study in Italy. Eduitalia works in close collaboration with the diplomatic service in order to facilitate student visa applications and to offer administrative support to foreign students.

The Study in Italy Eduitalia guide is a flexible instrument allowing students to find the right course capable of satisfying every learning requirement, both in terms of places and periods. The guide proposes a selection of academic courses offered by special schools or universities.

Thanks to this real-life experience in Italy, I truly hope Eduitalia students can become special friends and ambassadors of Italian culture in the world, and propose a similar cultural experience to friends and relatives.

I welcome all of you and wish you all an amazing cultural experience in Italy. It is going to be a rewarding one, thanks to the active support of Eduitalia.

Supporting the education of the young is the best insurance for a better and more peaceful world. I fully support your idea to study abroad, experience the Italian culture and learn our language. I hope you will be among the 1.5 million students who study Italian each year worldwide.

You are going to embark on a life changing and unforgettable experience.
